BIG NEWS ON CAMPUS

The pandemic has certainly impacted education, but for some schools, it has presented the opportunity to get creative. No matter how things have changed, schools are moving forward with new programs and resources that will enhance how students learn in the future.

INSIDE OUT

The makerspace and design center at the Howard School's year-old Young High School has quickly become a magnet for creative indoor engagement. Now students can also pursue outdoor interests in the new garden, a student-driven space that will soon have a specific curriculum to accompany it. Alongside the outdoor space is a seating area and a playground for younger students to unwind. Getting to campus is also easier now with the addition of a second campus access off Huff Road. howardschool.org

SPACE JAM

Atlanta International School soared this summer, thanks to its Space School Program, a partnership with NASA, the Georgia Space Grant Consortium, the Hines Family Foundation, and Mercer University. Student Kayley Walker completed parabolas aboard G-Force One with astronauts Nicole Stott and Charlie Duke. (Duke was the lunar module pilot of Apollo 16.) Other students were involved in summer research and attended STEM camps covering space exploration, physics, robotics, drones, coding, and climate science. The space theme continues in fall 2021 as students make artwork to celebrate NASA's Artemis missions that aim to land a woman and a person of color on the moon. Part of an installation big enough to be seen from space, the artwork will be unveiled during International Space Week. aisschool.org

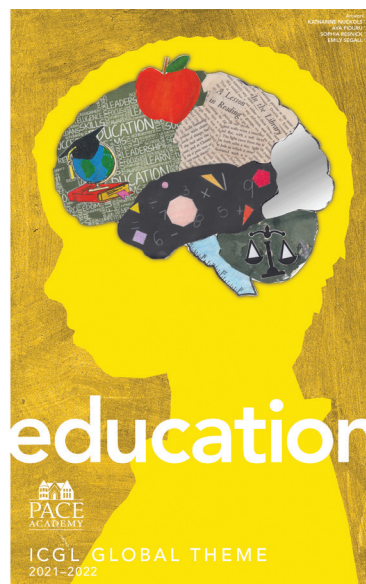

HEAD OF THE CLASS

Atlanta Girls' School has named Kimbrell Smith as interim head of school for a two-year term. Smith has worked for more than 18 years as an educator, counselor, and consultant. She served a two-year term on the school's trustee board and chaired the Strategic Planning Committee. Smith also spent nine years as the owner of Teegarden Education Group, a counseling and consulting practice for K-12 and college placement and coaching. The native Atlantan graduated from the University of Georgia and earned a Master of Divinity at Emory University. atlantagirlsschool.org

BIG BUZZ

Academe of the Oaks in Decatur has been abuzz with a new project: beekeeping. The campus is now home to seven hives that offer a range of learning opportunities around science, pollutants, the food chain, and environmental ecosystems. The hives also give students an up-close look at how nature and science are related. “Incorporating beekeeping into the curriculum fosters a new way of learning across multiple disciplines to connect to a growing awareness of the world,” said School Director Eva Handschin.

EDUCATION FOR ALL

Pace Academy in Buckhead welcomes Michelle Nunn, president and CEO of CARE USA, as its Isdell Center for Global Leadership visiting scholar. Nunn’s involvement is part of the center’s mission to sponsor programs focused on a different worldwide theme each year, with a spotlight on education for 2021–2022. Pace students, faculty, and staff will study the role education plays in social and economic development. paceacademy.org

ANIMAL BEHAVIOR

The Epstein School has launched a new “house” system designed to encourage academic, social, and behavioral achievements. Students are assigned to Dov (bear), Namer (tiger), Arieya (lion), or Zev (wolf). A team of middle schoolers called the “Crew in Blue” serve as house leaders. Students can earn points by demonstrating one of eight Epstein principles, including being honest and fair. The winner scores a party and a $500 donation to their charity of choice. epsteinatlanta.org

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION!

The Brandon Hall School in Sandy Springs has partnered with the Atlanta Workshop Players to create an “Arts Mecca” for students around the globe. Last year’s debut of a TV and film production studio supports the new TV/Film Pro-Track, designed for students to build their careers with help from award-winning directors and personalities, and to create networking and showcasing opportunities. The studios are outfitted with video cameras, monitors, lighting and sound equipment, and playback projectors so students can hone their skills in front of and behind the camera. brandonhall.org

HISTORY IN THE MAKING

Marist High School social studies teacher José Gregory was recently named the 2021 Georgia History Teacher of the Year. The award came from the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, an organization dedicated to American history education. From a record number of 8,510 nominees, Gregory was selected for the top honor in the state, making him eligible for the national award, to be announced in fall 2021. As part of the prize, Marist will receive a core archive of American history books, Gilder Lehrman educational materials, and recognition at a ceremony in Georgia. marist.com

TIME FOR A NEW SCHEDULE

The approximately 500 students in the middle and upper learning divisions at the Galloway School have moved to an eight-day rotating block schedule designed to accommodate deeper learning and collaboration. The new time frame features 75- and 80-minute sessions that give students a broader choice of classes and provide teachers with increased instructional time. The schedule also rotates the times of days when classes are offered, which optimizes learning for students who may perform at their best at different times of the day. Feedback from students is that it creates novelty and variety. gallowayschool.org

IN SYNC

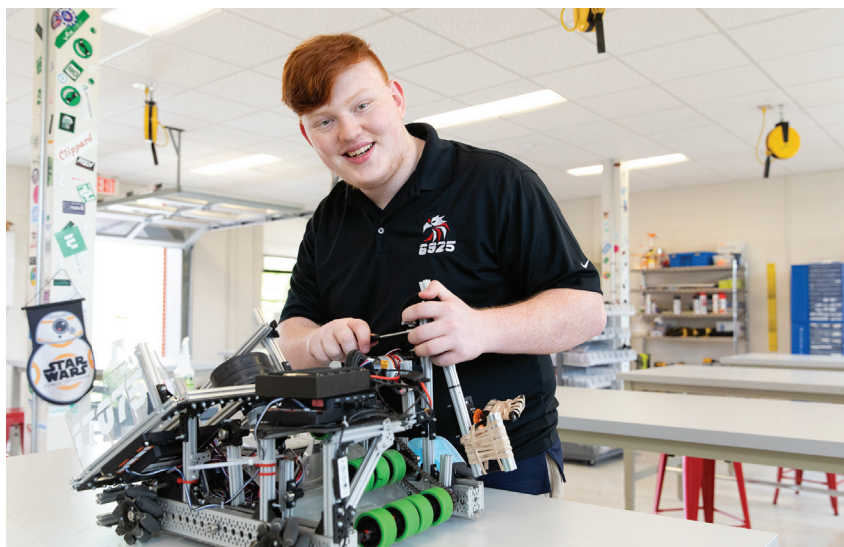

Greater Atlanta Christian School in Norcross has expanded its co-curricular and academic offerings for students who need hybrid schedules. Through GAC Sync, a combination of synchronous virtual learning, asynchronous online classes, and in-person options provides greater flexibility for students who want to customize their schedules while still enjoying the traditional experiences of a school community. The pandemic affirmed the need and spurred plans to create the more personalized learning environment.

DO UNTO OTHERS

A new graduation requirement means that students must complete a "Compassion Capstone" before they leave Woodward Academy. They can fulfill that objective by taking one of several courses and developing a project that ties the class theme to compassion and empathy. Projects can take a variety of forms such as murals, research papers, visual art, a TED Talk, a performance, or an oral history, to name a few. Each student will have the option to select the theme and medium. The requirement supports the school's commitment to diversity, inclusion, compassion, and empathy while also giving students the chance to leave a legacy in an area they feel passionately about. woodward.edu

INDEPENDENT SCHOOL GUIDE

Atlanta magazine's 2021 directory includes schools that are members of or accredited by Cognia, the Southern Association of Independent Schools (SAIS), or the Atlanta Area Association of Independent Schools (AAAIS). The schools have campuses in metro Atlanta's 12 core counties: Cherokee, Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Douglas, Fayette, Forsyth, Fulton, Gwinnett, Hall, Henry, and Rockdale.

WHAT'S NEW Students are able to choose between GAC Sync, a virtual link into each classroom, or asynchronous online classes through the Ethos School on a daily basis. This allows students to be in-person and still travel while maintaining the same educational experience. They can share experiences from athletics to class trips while freeing up their schedule to pursue interests and passions outside of school.

At Arbor Montessori School we foster independence in each child through supportive relationships, joyful learning, and meaningful work in a Montessori environment, inspiring them to contribute with integrity to the community of the world.

Campus Preview Day – Saturday, Nov. 13

This is The 805.

Where students pursue their passions and are challenged to reach their full potential.

Painting by Maria-Louise Coil '94, HIES Teacher and Parent

Atlanta Speech School

Where Each Child Becomes Who They are Meant to Be

At the Atlanta Speech School, the mission is to help each person develop their full potential through language and literacy.

Recognizing that reading proficiency is just the beginning, we deliver that mission every day across our four schools to effect transformative change. Through research-based practices, we weave the science of constructing deep reading brains with the art and soul of masterful teaching – so that each child has the tools to decide their own future confidently, empathetically and thoughtfully.

Wardlaw School is a K-6 elementary school that serves bright children with dyslexia in an academically challenging language and literacy setting. Given this foundation, students leave as robust readers, writers, and thinkers.

Anne and Jim Kenan Preschool serves preschoolers who are ready to form a pre-literacy foundation. Kenan teachers prepare children for all future subjects in a setting that is at once engaging and rigorous.

Katherine Hamm Center serves children who are deaf or hard-of-hearing, and develops language and pre-literacy skills through listening and spoken language in family-centered programs for children from birth through pre-K.

Stepping Stones serves preschool-aged children who have been identified as experiencing early speech and/or language delays. Stepping Stones focuses on ensuring each child has the chance to experience their full potential.

WHAT'S NEW Mount Vernon celebrates 50 years. Students in the upper school's Innovation Diploma Program are partnering with the University of Pennsylvania's School of Social Policy and Practice to design, implement, and launch social entrepreneurship ventures. Over the past seven years, Mount Vernon's arts program, Mount Vernon Studios, has become a place where students can create original work that gets published, presented, and streamed around the world.

GEORGIA COLLEGE GUIDE

LET YOUR BEST SELF SHINE

"I first visited campus during a LIFE Leadership Weekend event, and it was extraordinary," recalls Life U Doctor of Chiropractic alumnus Stephen Hill. "The community and people just really made me feel at home there, and that's really what led me to choosing LIFE. I wanted to be in a place where I felt I could be myself and learn the most so that I am able to make that positive impact on somebody."

LIFE[®]
University

it's in you.

Choose the University that sees you for you.

Home to the world's largest single-campus College of Chiropractic, as well as 14 undergraduate and three graduate degrees in the health sciences, social sciences and business fields, Life University (Life U) is located a short, 20-minute drive from Atlanta.

Not only do Life U students receive an educational experience like none other with a rich foundation in holistic health care and wellness, they also have the opportunity to connect to their purpose and live their optimal potential. Life U is for students who seek hands-on experiences in a close, personal learning environment (14:1 student-to-faculty ratio) and an education that guides them to their highest level of personal and professional success.

Life U recognizes all that is good, true and intrinsically "you" in all of their students. They honor it, stand in awe of it and will help students tap into it.

GETTING IN

Five things to keep in mind as you apply to college today

BY H.M. CAULEY

While many parts of the college application process remain the same each year, some elements of the undertaking have changed recently. It's helpful to keep a few things in mind as you begin the journey.

The first thing Kennesaw State University's Student Recruitment Director Jordan Stevenson tells aspiring Owls: breathe. "Try your best to remove stress at the beginning," he says. "That helps everyone work together through the entire process."

Of course, it's important to remember that the process has not escaped pandemic consequences. One positive is that virtual visits are now a viable way to check out schools beyond the metro area. "Why not do a virtual visit, see what the college has to offer, and ask some questions? It's a great way to widen the range of schools you're considering," says Kellie Butler, Oglethorpe University's director of admission. "If you think [a school is] a good fit, coordinate an in-person visit."

Social media shouldn't be overlooked as a helpful tool when considering a school's culture. "See what students have going on. Contact the school for names of students who are into what you're into," Butler says. "In the past, that information wasn't as available, but now there's much more out there."

When it comes to admission requirements, some schools will waive test scores due to COVID, and knowing how each institution handles that aspect is important. "Some schools will not look at scores even if you submit them," notes Butler. "Others will use them for scholarships and financial aid."

To keep track of key information, Stevenson encourages applicants to create a shared document that compares curriculums, costs, and other variables. "It's also useful to track deadlines for early applications, scholarships and FAFSA [Free Application for Federal Student Aid]," he says. "I recommend going with the priority action and early deadlines. Every college will tell you to apply as early as possible so you're in the pipeline for consideration. At KSU, the earlier you apply, the earlier you get a decision, and you don't have to worry through spring where you're going."

But submitting the main application isn't the end of the process; supporting documents such as recommendation letters, transcripts, and scholarship applications may have separate deadlines. And every document should be completely filled out with the correct information. "You'd be shocked how many times a student puts the name of the wrong school or misspells something I know they can spell," Butler concludes. "Have someone else look at your application. Sleep on it before you hit submit. Give it the time it deserves, and don't cut corners."

Every college will tell you to apply as early as possible so you're in the pipeline for consideration."

JORDAN STEVENSON

SHOW ME THE MONEY

Consider these resourceful ways to secure funding for school

BY H.M. CAULEY

Finding that perfect college fit often comes down to the practicality of finances. As U.S. News & World Report's research shows, the cost of higher education has climbed significantly in the last 20 years, often narrowing the choices for many. But before ruling out that dream college or university, consider the funding options beyond federal loans and grants that can make an impact.

"It's a tough process, but students have more control than they think," says Aimee Kahn-Foss, senior director of admission at Agnes Scott College. "There are scholarships out there that cover the full range, from majors you're interested in to specific talents. Aggregate websites can help you find ones that are a great fit, and outside scholarships can be used anywhere."

Audra Pittman, vice president for Savannah College of Art and Design (SCAD) Atlanta, encourages applicants to consider the industry they want to enter. "We've seen more companies—such as Macy's, BBT, and Hugo Boss—underwriting students looking to come into the industry. And consider entering a competition in your discipline; one of our students just won a $20,000 scholarship that way."

Additionally, two often overlooked aid sources are Georgia's HOPE and Zell Miller scholarships, which many students mistakenly think only apply to public universities. According to Kahn-Foss, "They help with about $4,000 to $5,000 when going to a private school." When attained, the HOPE Scholarship covers 90 percent of the tuition costs of enrollment for up to 15 credits per semester at a public college or university and a maximum of 12 credits at a private institution, while the Zell Miller Scholarship pays 100 percent of the total cost of in-state tuition.

Having an honest conversation with college officials about financing also can uncover surprising options, such as in-state pricing for out-of-state students or how applying early can open eligibility for more aid. "Get info directly from the source; talk to the colleges," Kahn-Foss says. "We have funding like the new Agnes Assurance Scholarship that, in fall 2022, guarantees $22,000 in scholarships to anyone offered admission. But students might miss that if they don't have a conversation."

Experts also agree that finding financing is akin to having a part-time job. You have to be willing to put in the time and research, but the payoff can be substantial. "Some of our students apply to one scholarship per week," Kahn-Foss reveals. "That can sound like a lot of time, but it's important to think of it as an investment."

“Get info directly from the source; talk to the colleges.”

NOTES ON LISTINGS

The Georgia College Guide directory includes all schools that have campuses in state, offer four-year undergraduate programs, and are accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) or, for satellite campuses, regional equivalents in the Council for Higher Education Accreditation.

Tuition figures are undergraduate and do not include fees or room and board unless otherwise noted. Graduate tuition figures also are provided when available.

HOPE figures are consolidated, including standard HOPE and Zell Miller Awards (unless noted). Schools supplied both SAT and ACT scores when available. Many schools still use only math and critical reading SAT scores for admissions. When available and used by the school, we have noted the composite three-part score for math, reading, and writing. The ACT score breakdown typically includes English and math. In some cases, schools no longer require SAT or ACT scores for admission, particularly during the COVID pandemic; this is noted when applicable.

Young Harris College is a private baccalaureate and master's degree-granting institution located in the beautiful mountains of North Georgia. Founded in 1886 and historically affiliated with the United Methodist Church, Young Harris College educates, inspires, and empowers students through an education that purposefully integrates the liberal arts and professional studies. The college has four academic divisions: Fine Arts; Humanities; Mathematics, Science and Technology; and Professional Studies. More than 1,400 students are enrolled in its residential and Early College programs. The College is an active member of the NCAA Division II and remains a fierce competitor in the prestigious Peach Belt Conference.

MORE THAN $23.8 BILLION

TO EDUCATION SINCE INCEPTION

Every time you play the Lottery, you're helping our kids get one step closer to their dreams. For over 28 years, the Georgia Lottery has contributed more than $23 billion to education. On top of that, over 2 million HOPE scholars have gone to college, and more than 1.6 million four-year-olds have attended a Lottery-funded Pre-K Program. That's a lot of students, so we'll just say "Thank You, Georgia!" for all of them.

THANK YOU,
GEORGIA!
