Georgia Design Awards Recognize Excellence and Highlight Projects

Top Designers Awarded Gold, Silver, and Bronze at Inaugural Gala

ATLANTA — Dec. 5, 2022 — Designers from across the state were honored Dec. 1 at the inaugural Georgia Design Awards Gala, produced by Atlanta magazine and Atlanta Magazine's HOME. The event brought together all segments of the design community, including architecture, construction, and interior design, to recognize excellence and highlight outstanding projects.

The event, held at The Starling in Midtown Atlanta, was sponsored by the Atlanta Decorative Arts Center (ADAC), AmericasMart Atlanta, Construction Resources, Circa Lighting, the Savannah College of Art and Design (SCAD), The Starling, and Sub-Zero, Wolf, and Cove. Emcees were Sean McGinnis, president and publisher of Atlanta magazine and Atlanta Magazine's HOME, and Betsy Riley, editor in chief of Atlanta magazine and editorial director of Atlanta Magazine's HOME.

Entrants submitted a wide variety of projects ranging from single rooms and product installations to entire homes and public spaces. Entries were judged by an independent panel of design professionals from outside of Georgia. The judges selected gold, silver, and bronze winners in each of four categories: interiors, residential architecture, outdoor spaces, and contract design. One of the contest's top awards, The Reader's Choice Award, was selected by the readers of atlantamagazine.com.

“We are thrilled to recognize Georgia designers and highlight their many exciting residential and commercial projects,” said McGinnis. “Our state is home to some of the country's most talented and innovative architects, builders, and interior designers, and this awards program gives us an opportunity to celebrate them. The program is also the first of its kind, not only bringing together the various segments of the design community but also involving consumers as well as trade professionals.”

In addition to the individual category awards, Best in Show awards were presented to the residential and contract projects with the highest overall scores from the judges and included: Carson McElheney Landscape Architecture & Design; Rule Joy Trammell Rubio; and Square Feet Studio. The Reader's Choice Award went to Fogarty Finger.

Judges for the Georgia Design Awards were: Lindsey Coral Harper of Lindsey Coral Harper Interior Design in New York and Stonington, Conn.; Ellen Gefen, co-founder of Gefen Marketing, Gefen Productions, and TheHome.com in High Point, N.C.; Charles L. Hudson Jr., owner of Hudson Designs in Johns Island, S.C.; NeKeia McSwain, principal designer at Kimberly + Cameron Interiors in Denver; Daphne Nikolopoulos, editorial director of Florida Design in Palm Beach, Fla.; Juan Poggi, owner of Poggi Design in Miami; Ken Pursley, partner at Pursley Dixon Architecture in Charlotte, N.C.; and Lauren Tolles, founder of Maison Birmingham in Birmingham, Mich.

Following is a complete list of winners, which are featured in the Winter 2022 issue of Atlanta Magazine's HOME. (Note: In order to earn recognition, projects had to earn a certain score from the judges; therefore, some categories do not have gold, silver, and bronze winners.) Winners and project images also can be found at atlantamagazine.com/georgia-design-awards-2022.

About the Georgia Design Awards

The Georgia Design Awards, produced by Atlanta magazine and Atlanta Magazine's HOME, span the categories of architecture, interior design, homebuilding, remodeling, and landscape design—both residential and commercial. Leveraging the full audiences of both magazines, along with the extensive reach of atlantamagazine.com, the awards highlight the best work and brightest talent of designers across the state. Entries ranged from single rooms to public spaces and were judged by an independent panel from outside of Georgia. For more information, visit www.atlantamagazine.com/georgia-design-awards-2022.

About Atlanta Magazine
